When the coronavirus pandemic hit the world in the first half of 2020, Zoom became unexpectedly popular due to a sudden increase in the number of people working from home.. While you'll need to sign up for a free account in order to use Zoom, once the program is installed on your computer, you'll be able to use it right away.. When the need arises to conduct remote meetings and video conferences, you really need to consider how many people are going to be involved before choosing which service you're going to use.. There is also a Business tariff available price at $19 99 per host per month, increases the maximum number of participants to 300, and adds a number of other business-centric features.. While there is no limit on the number of meetings you can host with a free account, you are limited to meetings of up to 40 minutes – although there's nothing to stop you from immediately restarting a meeting once this time limit is reached.
